

Kenji Shibuya, MD, DrPH

Professor and Chair, Department of Global Health Policy,
Graduate School of Medicine, University of Tokyo

Dr. Shibuya is a professor of Global Health Policy at the University of Tokyo's Graduate School of Medicine. He obtained his MD at the University of Tokyo in 1991 and started his career at Teikyo University's Ichihara Hospital in Chiba, Japan. He has been a research fellow at the Harvard Center for Population and Development Studies and worked in Cambodia and Rwanda. In 1999, Dr. Shibuya earned a doctorate of public health in international health economics at Harvard University. After teaching at Teikyo University in Tokyo, he joined the WHO's Global Programme on Evidence for Health Policy in 2001 and was been chief for the Health Statistics and Evidence Unit from 2005 until 2008. Dr. Shibuya was been a regular contributor to the World Health Reports and responsible for the World Health Statistics publications at WHO. He has published widely on mortality, causes of death, burden of disease, risk factors, cost-effectiveness, priority settings, and health system performance assessment. He spearheaded the future strategic directions of the Japanese global health policy agenda after the Hokkaido Toyako G8 Summit in 2008 in collaboration with G8 countries and Bill and Melinda gates Foundation. He has led the Lancet Series on Japan published in 2011 in an effort to jump start the debates on Japanese domestic and global health policy reform. He is currently a core member of the Global Burden of Disease 2010, GBD Scientific Council, and WHO health statistics, and an organizing committee member for several Lancet series.